Supply Chain Solutions, Developed by Mayo Clinic

Mayo Clinic, a leader in medical care, research and education, and one of the most trusted names in health care worldwide, now offers a service that will help other organizations control their transportation costs.

The Supply Chain Solutions' Logistics Program offers participating organizations the opportunity to:

- Assume control in buyer/supplier shipping expense
- Gain new transparency in shipping costs and discounts
- Raise the visibility of transportation costs internally
- Share in industry-leading rates

The Supply Chain Solutions' difference

The Supply Chain Solutions' Logistics Program is not a "contract for goods," but rather a comprehensive service that leverages Mayo Clinic's market position, knowledge and best practices. The program offers your organization:

- Targeted compliance from customer-based suppliers
- Price/cost transparency through a service-fee model
- Enhanced buyer control versus supplier control
- Discounted shipping rates
- Added value through account management, liaison and audit services

How it works

When your organization joins the Logistics Program, Supply Chain Solutions becomes your program manager and FedEx becomes your key shipping partner.

Your suppliers are directed to use the inbound shipping program and your organization transitions from "prepay and add" to "bill third party."

Instead of variable and hidden shipping costs, your organization pays a fee based on demonstrated savings. No savings, no fee.

With Supply Chain Solutions' Logistics Program, you will manage transportation expenditure by:

- Reducing marketplace variables
- Raising the visibility of transportation costs within your organization and the ability to connect shipping costs to actual users
- Controlling transportation costs within your organization

You can only manage- and measure- what you can see; all costs within the Supply Chain Solution's Logistics Program are transparent and supported by convenient and accurate transportation data.
